This is what my friend has been saying about the House

891.

892.

893.

"There's almost no chance the GOP will lose the house based on the gerrymandering. These false flag attacks or real attacks will get them nowhere. It's basically set up where the GOP will get a guaranteed 220 seats. Even if the Democrats win every single possibly contested race, it will be 220-215.

894. After the 2010 race when the GOP dominated across every level of government, it was 242-193. Then the districts were re-appointed because of the census and parties in both states did more to guarantee their victory.

895. Look at the year 2012 for example. Obama got re-elected as president, the Democrats kept control of the Senate by winning nearly every contested race, and they couldn't take the house because of the gerrymandering. Using Ohio as an example, the Democrat won the senate, Obama got the votes as well, yet the GOP won 12 of the 16 congressional districts. It's similar in most Republican leaning states, and in the Democrat states it's reversed but they already control the seats in those states so they can't pick any up.

896. The Democrats did modify the house districts in Pennsylvania which costs the Republicans 2 seats.

897. In 2012, overall it was it was 234-201 (Would be 232-203)

898. In 2014, it was 247-188 (Would be 245-190)

899. In 2016, it was 241-194 (Would be 239-196)

900. The projections that say the Democrats will take the house count on them winning every possibly contested race, as well as some seats that the GOP has won by 10+ points every year under the current congressional districts."

1383. Its natural for a man to lust after youthfulness
1384. legionnaire14
1385. I agree with that to an extent. 15/16 is not that big of a deal imo. But anywhere below for me is just no. You're absolutely right about men's instincts.

1418. wolfrik

1419. ronroman: Lmao wut

1429. wolfrik

1430. ronroman: No I just do not care and find your reaction extreme

1431.

1432. ronroman

1433. I just don't think we should idolize him as a person. What he did may be respectable in a sense but he shouldn't be hailed as some right wing saint. Respect the event not the person is what I'm saying.

1434.

1435. And no watching lolicon isn't the worst possible thing, but it's still a fault imo

1436. wolfrik

1437. I fucking hate the right wing

1438.

1439. But I see what you are saying

1474. Norman Spear

1475. I don't think they'd launch an investigation if that's what you mean

1476.

1477. d00mr

1493.

1494. I'll still be cautious

1495. d00mr

1496. Andras is somewhat correct but I can clarify. No one is going to go after you unless you give them a reason to. You should still be cautious. Prosecuting someone under the UCMJ requires a lot of paperwork and time, something everyone tries to sham out of. You should still be cautious and reserved about your opinions.

1497.

1498. If you they do go after you, you can get dishonorably discharged, your pay suspended, and you may have to pay back your enlistment bonus.

1499. That said, I'm familiar with reservists who do more activism than you do and they're fine.

1500. But they're only fine because they keep it to themselves and they're extra cautious about everything.

1603. Yes. I think true revolutionary spirit is something only few people possess inherently even if it lies dormant at first. But once it awakens it can't be ignored so we have no choice really but to continue the struggle.

1985. Norman Spear

1986. It will always only be a small percentage who take direction action. But the silver lining is it doesn't take many for revolution. What we're hoping for is to increase that small percentage by many be 1 or 2 points from less than 1% today to perhaps 3% max which would be ideal. Political polarization contributes to that growth. But you're also right that the System maintains itself in no small measure by moderating radical or polarizing influences. Therefore what we're also hoping for is that the System's ability to moderate will also weaken. Admittedly there are alot of "ifs" in there but barring a natural distaster, I'm not sure we have much else to pin our hopes on.

1987.

1988. doomsayeth

1989. Demographics are destiny.

1990.

1991. When the boomers start to die, and they need to, whites will become another voting minority in nost of the U.S., but unlike the other tribal PoC's whites have been indoctrinated to reject group identity.

1992. The whole country will swing dem and left, exactly how California did. There is no way to stop it really.

1993. But If we have strong white regional presences in place, disenfranchised whites will relocate to these areas.

1994. And then the second phase of our struggle begins...

1995. Norman Spear

1996. Agree. That's how it needs to play out.

1997.

1998. If the most radical of us can stick together as the pressure mounts (which is inevitable to a certain extent), it will set the stage and present an opportunity in the future to go on the offensive.

1999. doomsayeth

2000. Yes, indeed.

2001.

2002. Norman Spear

2003. There are multiple factors that need to play out a certain way for all this to come to fruition but i don't think it's at all beyond the realm of possibilities especially if we do what we can to help it along in the direction we want it to go in. Our ability to influence the direction will also increase exponentially as it gains momentum from the polarization around us. So I see some reason to be optimistic as things stand currently.

2004.

2005. As doomsayeth points out most of this will depend on the younger generations becoming more radicalized on both sides. even if our side is disproportionately smaller in that regard it'll still be a powerful force to be reckoned with.
