409. I think at this point in history everyone should merge to some extent and become one uniform coalition of different branches, the writers/educators, the

461. Yeah it is peak irony.

462. Also, on a another note. Here is a cool documentary on "Earthships" or sustainable self sufficient homes. Not only are they very efficient as far as heating/cooling, greenhouses, etc. Because of the construction methods involved they are also very durable.

463. <https://youtu.be/QTL8z5pbmHU>

464. In other words fortresses.

465. Norman Spear

466. doomsayeth: how much time have you invested in your homestead and how much total do you think necessary until you're finished?

467.

468. doomsayeth

469. Hmm...about two years time so far.

470.

471. But not full time.

472. And the amount of time it takes to finish is dependent on how big I want/ need to go.

473.

474.

475.

476.

477.

478. Norman Spear

479. Did you need to spend a lot of time clearing brush on your land before you got started developing the infrastructure?

480.

481. doomsayeth

482.

483.

484. In some areas yes. The lower parts are heavily forested.

485.

486.

487. But brush/tree clearing is relatively cheap. Especially since I cut up and keep all the felled trees for firewood.

488. Most heavy equipment operators will work for 25-50$ an hour

489. And they can clear around 2 acres an hour depending on tree cover and what rig they have.

490. Norman Spear

491. That's good

492.

493. doomsayeth

494. Now in washington the trees are alot bigger and everything would be nore expensive, just a guess.

495.

496. Norman Spear

497. Also I'm not sure if the terrain will allow heavy equipment to be brought up there.

498.

499. doomsayeth

500. That could be a problem for you, if you plan on putting in any infrastructure at all.

501.

502. Are there portions that are very flat?

503. But then again, I guess it deoends on your plans. Remote, inaccessible, and hidden can be a good thing.

504. Norman Spear

505. Might be able to get a mini excavator up there. There are a some flatish areas. Yes inaccessibility was part of the appeal so I'm expecting development challenges as tradeoff.

506.

507. doomsayeth

508. A skid steer could make it there probably.

509.

510. Norman Spear

511. Yes that seems realistic

512.

513. doomsayeth

514. What kind of trees are you dealing with?

515.

516. Enveloping canopy?

517. Norman Spear

518. Pines. The good news is that the flatter areas are fairly clear of trees.

519.

520. doomsayeth

521. Thats a plus for a hidden site as well

522.

523. Norman Spear

524. It was logged back in the 40s

525.

526. doomsayeth

527.

528.

529. Ohh ok.

530. Norman Spear

531. Yes there's canopy

532.

533. At least in some areas

534. doomsayeth

535. Tbh, if you had enough access to human labor, like 5-10 guys, you could buuld whatever you needed regardless of heavy equipment.

536.

537. Norman Spear

538. I anticipate much manual labor will be required

539.

540. Dwarf

541. There's a book called Back to Basics, a bit of an older book but it shows

I've mentioned this before, but look into nearby maker spaces. They often have free classes for members, including carpentry, black smithing, practically anything and everything 555.

556.

557.

Yeah, those type of events were pretty common where I lived before.

558.

Some are very informative.

This is what the guy behind the desk at the local range told me.

564.

doomsayeth

That sucks...

566.

Is that because of your status, or it applies to everyone?

609. Tbh, we need more circular arguments about the nature of nature.

610.

611. Are there members of the base who aren't on riot, but who are active on other platforms?

612. Norman Spear

613. There are about 6-10 guys who aren't on here but that I stay in touch with via social media. They just decided to opt out of participating in Matrix.

614.

615. Only one is actively contributing to The Base though.

616. Matrix has turned out to be very convenient way to communicate that without being active here a member is missing out on alot potentially. I tell everyone who's interested in participating that they should join us on Matrix.

625. Damn my fat boomer fingers

626. ュ Hyperborean Mick ㄥ

627. What do you define as "active" on here Norman? I probably won't be on here too much, but that is due to not wanting to be an "arm chair fascist" who just stares at their phone all day not doing anything 628.

629. I'm trying to get into IRL stuff rather than what i have been doing which is just talking

630. Norman Spear

631. There's no mandatory activity necessary in here. These rooms are primarily to facilitate IRL activity by sharing knowledge, networking, and planning.

632.

633. But if someone goes dark for extended periods it can pose a potential OPSEC issue so that can be a concern.

634. I try to get in touch with inactive guy via other means and if i do they can stay in here.

635. ュ Hyperborean Mick ㄥ

636. Ok that is good then, just making sure this wasn't going to be a purely internet thing

648. Nice, if anything is in the general NW GA area let me know can't promise i can make it further due to my current transportation issue

649.

650. But once that is resolved i'll basically go almost anywhere

651. Norman Spear

652. We also have a couple of longterm IRL projects that we discuss here like the comms net and communal bugout locations etc

653.

654. Like anything else online it's a double-edged sword

655. These rooms i mean

656. Y Hyperborean Mick A

657. Yea i might miss some good stuff sometimes like that but i don't feel like reading hundreds of messages to see the good ones

658.

659. An announcement in the activity chat for some things would be good

660. Norman Spear

661. Regional meet ups are deliberately compartmentalized

662.

663. National meet ups which are being planned will be announced to everyone but in a rolled out manner

664. If you have any suggestions and/or ideas on how to get people motivated to do IRL stuff feel free to suggest.

665. Or better yet, inspire by example.

666. Norman Spear

667. Another important purpose of these rooms is to develop a sense of community with the intention of that influencing IRL meet ups. Part of that is getting to know one another more online first. That can't be accomplished if someone isn't actively involved in the discussions. But again there's no formal requirement and that's why i say the inactive ones are only doing a disservice to themselves ultimately.

668.

669. The Base is actively promoted as an IRL network. That's the intention. What it actually becomes is largely up to all of you.

670. Y Hyperborean Mick A

671. Once i have some time and have better transport i will probably be more active and try to organize people to meet up but that all depends on them, not going to beg them

672.

673. Best way is to have numbers for the meeting and to have something fun planned

674. Norman Spear

675. I understand. Self-motivation is an important trait for participants of The Base network to possess.

676.

677. Y Hyperborean Mick A

678. I have some guys who are down but our situations are fucked, tried to meet them last week or so and my jeep tore up, one guy doesn't have a car yet but will soon, and the other is 17 so can't go far and has to make an excuse to meet up 679.

680. And another who was originally going to drive but he had court

681. Norman Spear

682. I'm not begging either. I'm trying to create conditions conducive to IRL activity but ultimately it's impossible to force anyone to anything.

683.

684. Yeah it's not genuinely easy for practical reasons often enough.

685. I totally understand that.

700.

701. Norman Spear

702. We have patches but there won't be uniforms. The Base is more of a network rather than a formal membership org.

703.

704. Υ Hyperborean Mick ㄥ

705. I do have a standard for my thing but plan on simplifying it to specific layered clothing and then camo is just anything flecktarn and gear just be OD green 1159. What kind of vetting do they have for their members?

1160.

1161. Dwarf

1162. Well, we're more a group of friends. Not an official org.

1163.

1164. Norman Spear

1165. Ok

1166.

1167. Dwarf

1168. Anyways to cut tension,

1174. Also to be fair, as someone who actually leans towards the eco fash view, they really do have their own agenda/differing goals.

1175.

1176. They're on our side, but they're gonna just end up being woodland hermits in the end.

1177. Dwarf

1178. Yes, it's a new viewpoint. Some just want collapse so they can go live in the woods alone without interference. Some want to cleanse the world and live in relative harmony with nature.

1179.

1180. Some want to be raiders for fascism lmao.

1185. Yes, it's a new viewpoint. Some just want collapse so they can go live in the woods alone without interference. Some want to cleanse the world and live in relative harmony with nature.

1186. Pretty much dwarf.

1187.

1188. They're not bad guys at all.

1189. But they wouldn't make the best allies imo.

1190. They have their own shit to do.

1191. Helpful but neutral supporters if you will.

1192. Dwarf

1193. Yeah, I see it as a valuable ideology.

1194.

1195. leafensraum

1196. Yeah same.

1197.

1198. Dwarf

1199. Technology makes men weak in many ways, and can be a net negative than a positive.

1200.

1201. leafensraum

1202. It can, if you let it take over your life.

1203.

1204. Dwarf

1205. Not that all technology is bad but the industrial society has caused decay.

1206.

1207. leafensraum

1208. But eliminating it is equally negative.

1209.

1210. Norman Spear

1211. Dwarf: has your group of eco fash friends met IRL at all?

1212.

1213. Dwarf

1214. Two are planning on it, ik another has met with other fascists in Eastern Europe.

1215.

1216. We haven't all met up however.

1217. Norman Spear

1218. That's pretty important as far as vetting is concerned

1219.

1220. Getting in here is only a small first step

1221. Online stuff should be the same for you guys

1222. Maybe your friends are a bunch of chinamen for example. You'd never know.

1223. leafensraum

1224. Imo should just be a means to an end re: internet

1225.

1226. Norman Spear

1227. Yes. That's what we're doing in these rooms—Using them to facilitate IRL activity

1228.

1229. And as you noted, the vetting never stops

1230. Even after meeting.

1231. Vetting fundamentally means developing trust and that naturally takes time

1232. leafensraum

1233. Agreed. 100%

1234.

1235. Norman Spear

1236. The initial email info to get in these rooms is deliberately not intensive on vetting info in order to build trust rather than distrust. In other words, we don't ask for doxable details by design. Interesting how some even perceive not asking for details as a suspicious 1237.

1238. Just can't win either way with some people i guess.

1239. doomsayeth

1240. Paranoiacs going to paranoia

1241.

1242. It's gud to be vigilant

1243. But posting GTKRWN 4000 times on twitter doesnt get you on the FBI's most wanted list.

1249. Infrastructure is a real life network of people and the material resources & skills that they bring to the struggle. That's what our primary objective is here—To help build needed infrastructure including developing individual skills to that end. These are things that can potentially be of benefit to any number of groups whose members participate in The Base network even if their respective group has a different primary objective.

1260. Norman Spear: can you post a pic of the patches

1261.

1262. Not what i was responding to but it works lol

1263. Might buy one

1264. Norman Spear

1265. The patches are waiting for me stateside so I don't have them with me. They are 3 x 2 in all black with the white Base logo

1266.

1267. Y Hyperborean Mick A

1268. Like a normal flag patch?

1269.

1270. Norman Spear

1271. And I'm not going to ask for anyone's address so you'll either need to meet me in person to get one or take a chance and give me your address voluntarily. In that way it's literally a badge of courage.

1272.

1273. Yes

1274. And they are free to members in good standing

1275. Y Hyperborean Mick A

1276. I'd just give my address tbh, if i somehow get doxxed oh well antifa will know what i look like for 5min until their attention span finds a bright light to stare at 1277.

1278. Norman Spear

1279. Because of the risk involved anyone who gets a patch has reached a significant next level of vetting.
