757. I just want to comment on what was brought up before about meeting IRL and acting alone if necessary. We all should be actively recruiting for The Base. Quality over quantity of course but to have more meet up opportunities overall we need more people. Recruiting can be online or with posters IRL if it makes sense in your particular area. The other thing we should all be doing ideally is collecting intel on people, places, and things in our respective AOs. Don't write anything down of course but create a mental database. Finally, stay active in these rooms (including book club) to get to know each other better and share knowledge. These are all things that supplement meeting IRL and engaging in IRL activities eventually if not immediately.

758.
